

Yudelson Associates Adds New Green Building Consulting Staff

Green Building consultant, Jerry Yudelson expands his firm's capabilities with new Senior Associate, Research Director and Project Manager

Tucson, AZ (PRWeb) July 22, 2008 -- Yudelson Associates today announced the hiring of Eileen Fagan, LEED® AP, Senior Associate; Dr. Jaimie Galayda, Research Director; and Emily J. Buttrick, LEED AP, Associate AIA, Project Manager.

In announcing the new staff, green building consultant Jerry Yudelson, PE, LEED AP, said, "We are getting inundated with new green building work, sustainability consulting projects and LEED certification requests along with our continuing work in green building retail and commercial development. We are fortunate to find these highly qualified people to add to our growing professional staff."

Fagan was formerly Business Development Director for the Denver office of a national engineering firm. She has more than 20 years of professional marketing and consulting experience. At Yudelson Associates, she serves as the overseer of LEED certification efforts and assists other clients with green building marketing issues.

Galayda earned her PhD in Ecological Economics at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, NY, one of the leading centers for this field of study. At Yudelson Associates, she directs contract research efforts for national trade and professional associations, as well as for corporate sustainability clients. She focuses on energy efficiency, sustainability and green building research.

Buttrick has completed her internship as an architect and has served as a project manager for several architectural projects. Her focus at Yudelson Associates is LEED project management for a number of retail, office and commercial projects.

Yudelson Associates also announced the hiring of Cyrus Khosh-Chashm, JD, and Kelli Herman, B.Arch as research interns, working on retail and commercial sustainability and energy conservation projects.
